IELTS Table

Describing an IELTS table is similar to describing charts or graphs. The same structures of comparison and contrast are used or language of change if the table is over time.

A table is just another way to present information.

It does not require that you learn a new type of language or a new way to organize things.

For example, take a look at this IELTS table showing the quality of life in four countries presented in a table:

Country	GNP per head (1982: US dollars)	Daily calorie supply per head at birth	Life expectancy (years)	Infant mortality (per 1000 live births)
Bangladesh
Bolivia
Egypt
Indonesia
USA
